The matter was discussed and decided on readily at a meeting of the society yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. R. Dewey on Oklawaha avenue. PRIMARY OBLIGATIONS

The Gainesville Sun indulges in the following pertinent remarks about primary obligations:

The Governorship

The editor of the Sun has never voted other than the democratic ticket in all the 34 years he has been of voting age, and so long as he participates in a primary or other party methods for nominating a candidate he is going to abide by the action of the majority when the candidates receive such nomination in a fairly conducted contest, free or fraud, and the party machinery declares him to have been nominated. The Sun opposed Mr. Catts for the governorship in the recent primary, but if he is declared the democratic nominee and the courts sustain the action of the canvassing board, the Sun will support his candidacy against that of republican, socialist or independent, as we deem it the duty of all democrats to do.

The matter of his nomination has now been taken to the courts, and if all the contentions as presented to Mr. Knott are substantiated in regard to irregularities in many counties Mr. Knott will be the nominee instead of Mr. Catts, but be that as it may, the Sun will be found supporting the nominee, be he Catts or Knott.

In this connection, however, we cannot refrain from comparisons. We know of men right here in Gainesville who vowed that they would not support President Wilson were he nominated and who now openly say they will vote the republican ticket for president; yet these same men were permitted to vote in the democratic primary and cram down the throats of loyal democrats such a man as Catts for governor. It would be treason, in their opinion, for one who voted in the primary to vote against Catts, but it is patriotism for them to vote against Wilson for president.

It was a mistake to ever let these hybrids participate in the democratic primary, and the sooner the primary law is so amended as to exclude them the better it will be for the party and the state. The second choice feature of the primary law is a failure, and before another election rolls around it is hoped that we will revert to the double primary, for only in this way can the party be safe from interlopers whose only interest in the party is the office they seek. Had the double primary been in vogue this year Catts would not possibly have been imposed on the party as the nominee, for fifty thousand democrats have said they do not want him for governor as against thirty thousand who expressed their choice for him.
